This plan has been in the pipeline for almost 20 years and well before the Brewery Site was developed and so residents knew of the proposed link road when buying their properties.

This road is vital in relieving the congestion within the town centre i.e. the High Street.

Marlow infrastructure is already at full capacity the schools are full, the doctors cannot cope with the increasing population and the councils have not addressed the problem of parking in the town so we do not need another small development adding to our woes.

Why has the John Lewis partnership won its proposals to develop the site for housing over and above the town's recommendations? and what has the above promised to do for the town in return for them being allowed to develop the site?
